

69th Montana Legislative Session

By Representative Kenneth Walsh, House District 69

The 69th Montana Legislative Session wrapped up on April 30th, marking the 85th day of productive debate and policymaking. As a third-term member of the House of Representatives, I am proud of the work accomplished to ease financial burdens, cut taxes, and expand conservation efforts for Montanans.

Historic Property Tax Relief

One of the most significant achievements this session was passing Senate Bill 542 and House Bill 231, providing much-needed property tax relief. Senate Bill 542 delivers a $400 rebate to Montana property taxpayers next year, while House Bill 231 restructures residential property tax rates, bringing substantial cuts:

- 0.76% on the first $400,000 of property value
- 1.1% on values between $400,001 and $1.5 million
- 2.2% on property above $1.5 million

These reforms will result in average property tax savings of 34% compared to last year and 40% compared to what taxes would have been under previous laws. Importantly, this package protects Montana's agriculture and industry sectors from rate hikes, ensuring fairness across all communities.

The Largest Income Tax Cut in State History

Tax relief didn't stop at property taxes—House Bill 337 introduced major reductions in income tax rates to help working families across Montana. The new tax structure will lower rates from 5.9% to 5.65% in 2026, followed by a drop to 5.44% in 2027. For families filing jointly, the threshold for a higher tax rate jumps from $41,000 to $95,000 in 2026, and to $130,000 in 2027—a significant win for working-class Montanans.

Expanding Conservation Efforts

One of my proudest accomplishments this session was House Bill 932, which I sponsored and successfully sent to the governor's desk. This bill unlocks new opportunities for conservation funding by expanding the use of revenue from the state's marijuana tax special account. Previously, these funds were restricted to land purchases and easements, but now, they can be used for critical environmental projects such as:

- Irrigation infrastructure
- Forest management and prescribed burns
- Noxious weed mitigation
- Wetland protection
- Wildlife crossings
- Riparian protection and repair
- Wildlife friendly fencing
- Range and soil management practices

By empowering conservation districts, private landowners, and public land users alike, HB 932 marks a significant victory for Montana's natural resources.

Looking Ahead

This session was one for the books, filled with challenges and triumphs alike. I am honored to serve alongside dedicated legislators on both sides of the aisle, and I remain committed to representing House District 69 with integrity.

As we move into the interim, I encourage all Montanans to stay engaged and share their concerns, ideas, and priorities. Your voice matters in shaping the future of our state, and I look forward to continuing this work for the people of Montana.

Representative Ken Walsh

May Dust and Montana Tales

By Kate Joki Rose

May isn’t just the month when tulips and tourists return to Montana. It’s also the anniversary month for several remarkable chapters in our state’s past. Some are a point of pride, some a puff of ash, and one was a matter of federal paperwork that changed everything.

Let’s start with a defining moment: May 26, 1864, when President Abraham Lincoln, busy saving the Union, found time to sign a little document carving out what would become the Montana Territory. Up to that point, as I’ve mentioned before, we were part of Idaho Territory, an indignity some of us can’t shake. Lincoln’s signature officially made us a territory and set the wheels turning toward statehood. That means Montana was technically “born” in late May. Happy birthday old girl.

Fast forward a few decades to another May milestone, this time rooted in conservation. On May 23, 1908, Congress established the National Bison Range in the Flathead Valley. It was one of the earliest efforts in the United States to save a species from extinction. Bison, once numbering in the tens of millions, had been hunted to near oblivion. Montana, of course, stepped in with compassion and land. With funding help from the American Bison Society (and a big push from President Roosevelt), the range was born. Thirty-four bison were purchased and placed on federal land, a wild bunch with the weight of an entire species on their shoulders.

It’s still there today, still home to hundreds of buffalo, and still a quiet reminder that sometimes, when we don’t shoot everything, nature finds a way.

Then, there’s May 18, 1980, when Mount St. Helens blew its top in Washington, and Montana got a face full of ash. Like a passive-aggressive relative, the volcano didn’t yell directly at us, but we sure caught the aftermath. I bring up this ‘non-Montana’ event because I recall it as being the one and only day the schools closed due to weather. In heavy snow we put on boots. In twenty-below weather we added scarves for our faces. We didn’t get ‘snow days’. It took a volcanic eruption to even give us a legitimate day off. Butte and Bozeman saw skies the color of old dishwater and ranchers reported coughing cows. Flights were grounded and there was a run on vacuum cleaner bags. (my mother had them all) But like always, we Montanans wiped our windshields and went on with it.

So, if May feels momentous, that’s because it is. It gave us boundaries Lincoln himself once drew lines around. It gave us bison to repent our past and protect the future, and it gave us dusty pickup dashboards courtesy of a volcano 700 miles away. But most importantly? May gave us a day to honor the men and women who protected all of it for all of us.

Happy Memorial Day Ruby Valley.

TRADFEST

The Elling House Arts & Humanities Center bring Ben Winship of Victor, Idaho, and Bozeman native Natalie Padilla (Williamsburg, MA) together for a show at Virginia City's Elling House on Saturday, May 31st at 7:00pm. Ben and Natalie have collaborated on the side for the past 6 years and will showcase a mix of their original music along with some old-timey standards.

You can expect some toe-tapping fiddle tunes that make you want to whoop and holler, singing that will get right in there if you know what I mean, and perhaps even a jazzy number. They do a good bit of laughing on stage too, come join us for a joyful and inspiring night of folk music in Montana's beautiful Alder Gulch.

ART IN THE GARDEN

This year's Art in the Garden children's program will include three single day events! Mark your calendars!

JUNE
Saturday, June 14, 10AM - 12PM
3D Nature Art!
Learn about nature artists, forage natural materials creekside and create your own works of art in the garden, such as rock sculptures, nature mandalas, fairy houses and more!

JULY
Saturday, July 12th, 10AM - 12PM
3rd Annual Monet Day
Kids and adults alike are welcome to plein air paint in the garden to cello music! Sip tea and enjoy the serene gardens!

AUGUST
TBD
Stay tuned for a fun event to close the season!
